We go to Mr. Curry's often, as it has vegan options for lunch in downtown STL. Tuesday is the day the most vegan options are on the buffet. I love the chana masala (chickpeas), noodles(which are basically well seasoned ramen but still), the yellow rice w/green beans & peas, and the mushroom dishes like chili mushroom. Usually amazing flavors BUT, it's hit or miss. The hit is when Mr. Curry is actually there. When he is on vacay or simply away, like today...it's a miss. We can tell whoever is cooking knows what the food is supposed to taste like, but they haven't quite gotten it down. It was missing those signature flavors today, pretty bland and lifeless. Some days it has even been burned, the charred smell hits you at the door and the food reflects it. The young lady is so nice whenever we go in though, and very accommodating. Very reasonably priced too.

We went here for lunch buffet. Not a single item was refilled in the buffet. They did not even have plates to eat. They did take the full price for the buffet. They had only one employee and she could not handle everything. You might be in luck if you go early. We went at 12.20pm and both myself and my wife just had some rice and one curry. They did not even have bread.

Attended here for lunch. Not very impressed with the food at all. I typically love Indian food and just about everything on the buffet. Not this time. Really only one thing I enjoyed everything else seemed not similar to any other Indian food I've ever had. I had hoped for more but didn't get what I was looking for.

Update: Glad I missed the period when they got rid of the buffet. It was back when I got to visit again. Seems like possibly less items than before, but more focused on those people really like. The quality and friendliness of the staff were both just as great as on my last trip to St. Louis. Would definitely come here again bet. 11-2 for lunch.

Previous Review: Got their take out buffet. It's like a self serve froyo, get what u want and then pay by weight. The food quality was excellent. Only one dish was overly spicy, the rest were well seasoned for non-Indian eaters. The staff was friendly and helpful. The pricing was right for the quantity and quality. If you like traditional style Indian food that is not the burn your mouth off style, then this place is for you. Would definitely come back when in the area and would definitely recommend visiting if you are in downtown St. Louis. It is one of the best restaurants for quality and pricing in the area. Only drawback is that they are currently only open for lunch from 11:00-2:00, so make sure you hit their lunch window while they at

NO LONGER A BUFFET--instead fixed menu with a few plates and several wraps. :( I went for my bi-weekly visit to Mr. Curry's Indian Buffet downtown STL early last week. I go fairly often and take many, many friends and co-workers to try it too--I've mostly enjoyed the restaurant and the buffet. (There have been a couple times when the food was off a bit from the usual tastiness and there have been a couple times when the platters were empty and took a bit to be re-filled, but) I have enjoyed the food enough to be a regular customer.

UNTIL, LAST WEEK, when--upon entering--I became aware of a huge change. IT IS NO LONGER A BUFFET. Instead there is a set menu of wraps and a few plates with entrees and sides. Many of the same foods are available; however, the pricing and the set up is completely different. I prefer the buffet. I sincerely hope that this review is followed by other like-minded customers who make their voices heard and that Mr. Curry's in turn goes back to the way things were.--If it ain't broke, don't fix it.

In the meantime, I will have to branch out and try other Indian Restaurants until I find one I like.

I've always been a fan of going to lunch at Mr Curry's, as they have a good variety of Indian food that all tastes good, and it rotated throughout the week so you could visit different days for different dishes. The price was very good too!

They closed for renovations and today we went back, excited to have Mr Curry's for the first time in about a month. But lo and behold the renovations were not what we expected.

Mr Curry's is now "express food", which means no more buffet. Ok, not a great start to the visit. The service was slow, obviously not being a buffet that is expected, and first day open also tends to bring down speed, so that is fine and I expect it will be better over time. It boils down to your choice of rice, 2 entrees, and bread choice. Major bummer given I love to try all the different entrees in smaller portions rather than 2 large ones. They also began charging for the lovely dessert like rice pudding and mango lassi, while other desserts weren't present at all.

While the food is still the same, there's a bitterness from the grief these changes bring. I would love to see them return to the glory days of the buffet, and would be willing to pay more for the buffet than before. Only time will tell...

Crap, they're closed for renovation. Wanted to eat lunch here. Drove all the way from IL to find out that they're closed for renovations. So frustrating. Why can't they post that they're closed here?

My dad has been bringing me their chicken tikka masala home from work since I was probably 13, I'm 18 now. Wow. They by far have the best chicken tikka masala I have tasted in st.louis. I've been to countless different Indian restaurants in stl and nothing can top it. The owner is an incredibly nice, down to earth guy. I ate in one day and was buying a separate to go order of Tikka masala and he gave it to me for free. They also give a discount for those who pay in cash. I can't say enough good things about them and their food.

I can't believe how long it took me to write a review for Mr. Curry's. I guess it takes being away from the city to realize this is simply the BEST Indian restaurant I've ever been too.

Let's start with the food, the buffet selection is amazing - it offers an array of delicious chicken, lamb/goat, and vegetarian options. Some menus are rotating. All dishes are well prepared all FULL OF FLAVORS. Not to mention so many choices of chutneys/dips. I could never get tired of the dishes here. Btw, their ground lamb is usually pretty spicy but most other dishes do not have a lot of heat. They, however, have a rather mild but creamy taste that flatters the flavor of the ingredients themselves. I actually prefer that the dishes are not just masked by heavy spices.

Amazing Indian cuisine at a shockingly affordable price is not the only reason I came here. My favorite part has always been the owner of Mr. Curry's. He is one of the nicest, kindest, and most genuine person I've ever met. He always warmed my heart whenever I came here. He would kindly offer tips and solutions for the most trivial questions I brought up. I hope he is doing well! I want to have the chance to say thank you to him again.

Their Chai is the most delicious but not aggressive I've ever had. They bottled the mix for sale for a while that literally made my day. I hope they bring it back. Btw they now offer takeouts priced by weight, so you can get fresh, hot, yummy food in small portions without worrying about wasting it. How great is that!

I'm a huge Asian food lover and this has been my favorite place to treat myself on a budget. Even the memory of it has made me disappointed by most other Indian restaurants I came across, be it in San Francisco or DC. I'd highly recommend it to anyone who enjoys a mild Indian cuisine or just need someone to talk to.

First time eating Indian food and I was not disappointed. Didn't put one thing on my plate that didn't taste good. Very simple way of purchasing your food too -- you grab a plate, eat all you want at the buffet, and pay on the way out. $10 cash, $11 card (dollar extra for a drink), so bring cash.

If you work or live close to downtown, you should check this place out. Plenty of parking nearby, and only a few blocks from the metrolink.

I've been going every couple of months since they opened years ago. Food is delicious and always fresh. They keep the buffet bins filled up with frequent batches. Everything is very clean. Bollywood music videos playing on the TV are a hoot to watch. The Tandoori chicken is the best! This buffet is a perfect way to explore Indian food. It has a great mix of vegan and non-vegan dishes, from mild to hot. Everything is so very tasty.

My husband always said that he dislikes Indian food (or any "exotic" foods) so as we were passing through St. Louis, I mentioned an Indian restaurant that had great reviews. He caved in and we went. It was "amazing". Many vegetarian options for me, and Tim liked the tandoori chicken. The service was great and the price was very reasonable. Tim loved the food and we left with big, happy bellies.

Their to go lunch is definitely the best lunch deal in downtown. At $3.95/lb that includes a mango lassi, I got enough food to be super full after spending only $6. There is a good variety and plenty of vegetarian options, and the food is delicious. The owner is super nice and didn't even charge me the $0.11 extra and made my bill $6 even. They have a $10 minimum for credit cards and charge an extra $1 for credit cards as well, so cash is better.

Mr. Curry's is great for anyone who is new to Indian food and is trying to learn Indian flavors. When going to this lunch buffet you're able to experience a variety of Curry's and Indian dishes. And everyday they try to keep the menu just a little bit different in order to keep it exciting.

It is set up buffet style, of course with a cook constantly refilling or exchanging the curries that are out. They had vegetable rice and basmati rice. Along with some Indian style noodles you can pair with your food. The tandoori chicken has a nice flavor and is juicy. Tikka masala is a great way to go because it has a kick and has inviting flavors and spices. Moving towards the end of the curry line is where you'll have the vegetarian options all great.

After going through the line of curries and naan you are near sweets, Mango Lassi and Chai tea. Mango Lassi, Chai tea, and water go with your meal. You are able to sit down wherever you'd like and will pay after devouring at least two plates of Indian food. For the price mr Curry's is more than worth it.

It is currently 9/28/17 and the price is $10 with cash and $11 with debit/credit. A fountain drink is a $1 more onto that price. But I do encourage getting the Mango Lassi and or Chai. :)

I love Indian food. Especially lunch buffets. And ones that can weigh the food in a to-go box instead of a flat rate. This place had it all. And so many vegetarian options! The paneer saag was flavorful but the veggie masala was delicious. It was sweet and spicy with a wide mix of veggies. My favorite, though, was the rice pudding. Wish I had gotten more!!

The best Indian food I've ever had, hands down. The decor is very simple, don't judge this book by its cover. I had their lunch buffet. So many choices including breads and desserts. I sampled several dishes, they were all EXCELLENT! This food put a smile on my face and sent me straight to a food induced comma. Just the right amount of spice, heat & sweet. Very reasonably priced. Very attentive service.
